Excerpt: .of Rugby School, will read a paper on the desirability of teaching all boys geology or biology during some portion of their school life; Mr. Cross, of King s School, Peter Tue annuTechnical I. was held on December 16, when. the awa ds we.stnbuted by Dr. H. A. Miers, F.R.S., prin cipal of the University of London. In the course.of his address, Dr. Miers pointed out that success in competition is to be regarded. as a special gift, because. it is not everyone who is born to succeed in competing with his fellow men and women, and, moreover, success is not to be measured by the faculty of excelling others. I opleasure can surpass that of success in one s own work, and. the problem in modern life is how to combine this conscious spirit of pleasure and pride in work with the totally different conditions in which it is carried out now as compared to those which existed in the old days of the guilds and apprenticeship in the City of London. The aim of technical institutions should be to make the students less of specialists and to give them more versatility and adaptability so as to enable them to find out new ways of pursuing their own work. it is true that in orderto effect this many subsidiary subjects of study are necessary, but such subjects should be regarded as only representing the different principles of the more special subject of study,...
