Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from On Guard: A Novel For all this violation of the usual laws of Nature s colouring, Florry Villars was a very lovely girl. The shape of her head - the yielding lines of her full rounded figure - the manner of her movements - all these were perfect. Her aquiline nose was as utterly devoid of strong-mindedness and severity as the veriest snub could have been. Her hazel eyes were as tender as the deepest blue that ever adorned another woman s face. While as for the gentle retreat her rounded chin made, it was women and women alone who had the heart to suggest that it betrayed weakness of character. Artists, and, indeed, men generally, held that it was all that a woman s chin should be. She had a very sweet smile, this lovely Miss Florry Villars: a charming smile - warm and pure as a sunbeam. All that portion of the world which came in contact with her knew her smile; for it was rarely absent from the soft ruddy lips and...
