

Picturing Black New Orleans: A Creole Photographer's View of the Early Twentieth Century (Hardback)

By Arthe A. Anthony

University Press of Florida, United States, 2012. Hardback. Book Condition: New. 257 x 183 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Florestine Perrault Collins (1895-1988) lived a fascinating and singular life. She came from a Creole family that had known privileges before the Civil War, privileges that largely disappeared in the Jim Crow South. She learned photographic techniques while passing for white. She opened her first studio in her home, and later moved her business to New Orleans's black business district. Fiercely independent, she ignored convention by moving out of her parents house before marriage and, later, by divorcing her first husband. Between 1920 and 1949, Collins documented African American life, capturing images of graduations, communions, and recitals, and allowing her subjects to help craft their images. She supported herself and her family throughout the Great Depression and in the process created an enduring pictorial record of her particular time and place. Collins left behind a visual legacy that taps into the social and cultural history of New Orleans and the South. It is this legacy that Arthe Anthony, Collins's great-niece, explores in Picturing Black New Orleans . Anthony blends Collins's story with those of the individuals...
